

A Knockout in Work Shoes

You may not all have noticed that every time you buy a new pair of work shoes in a regular way—you have been asked more money for them. Work shoes that a few months ago cost $2.60 at the factory today's regular price is $3.35.

We bought over 500 pair of Endicott Johnson Corporation and Weyenburg Shoes last week at our own price—plus our 1926, plus our 1927 purchases of staple shoes at under market prices. We can go on for a long time and not boost work shoe prices any higher.

Why don't you buy your next pair of work shoes and pay cash? We suppose you eventually will have to pay anyway. Try a cash deal once and save 50c to $5.00 a pair.

Good Solid Work Shoes, a pair.....

Deep Cape-like Collars Latest Whim of the Mode

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

That which the mode has these months been foretelling in the way of lavish lace neckwear sets is being happily realized in spring fashionings. Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the importance of handsome lace or, if it so please, dainty georgette accessories. Now that the vogue is started, it is developing at such a rapid rate, one scarcely thinks of spring frocks, especially those of cloth and silk for daytime wear, which do not include fetching lace touches. As to the most popular items in lace adornment who can tell, with such a wealth of ideas making their appearance in fashion pictures. An outstanding figure among neckwear novelties is the collar which forms a deep cape-like effect at the back. In the accompanying picture, Barbara Kent, whose face is so pleasantly familiar to every "movie fan," wears one of the very new deep collars, posing it before a mirror so those interested may view it back and front. It seems that this modern collar develops a fichu tie at the front. This is a very proper thing for it to do, considering that the mode at this moment is placing great stress on fichu effects. One sees many dark silks and satins made up with a fichu tie of fine ochre-tinted Alencon lace. One of the biggest successes of the lace mode is the plastron sets which are designed to wear over the dress, as in the handsome Van-dyke (so called because of its pointed contour) model in the picture. For these V-shaped and often round yoke effects, a veritable medley of fine laces are worked together in a most intriguing manner. Styles with collars, as here pictured, vie with collarless effects. The georgette plaited set in the picture is charming as you see it here, forming a deep collar effect with tie caught at the front with a pearl buckle. The beauty of this model is that it can be worn in so many ways. For instance, by turning it around so that the buckle is positioned at the left shoulder with streamers dropping down to one side, an entirely new interpretation is given, and one most youthful and becoming in that it defines a girlish round neckline. This charming set is available in rose, beige, flesh and white georgette. (Copyright 1928, W. N. U.)

be flat, even sized and shapely. Another way to prepare such rich cookies as the "ice box"—they are made in a long roll and allowed to chill over night, then are sliced in thin slices and baked in a hot oven. For a plain old-fashioned cookie which is rolled and cut, the following is good: Plain Cookies—Mix one cupful of sugar with one-third of a cupful of softened shortening, then add one well-beaten egg, two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt; add two tablespoonfuls milk alternately with the flour, then flavor with one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. By adding almond extract and sprinkling the top with chopped almonds another flavor will result. Spices, a few raisins, chocolate or frosting of different kinds will make this recipe into a variety of cookies. Chocolate may be added, omitting a tablespoonful or two of flour; coconut cookies may be easily made by covering the top or stirring the coconut into the mixture, or the cookies may be filled with a teaspoonful of any cooked fruit mixture, cooled, then another cookie placed on top; then bake as usual. Nut Cookies.—Cream one cupful of butter, add two cupfuls of brown sugar, one cupful of milk alternately with three and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of lemon or vanilla. Roll and cut after mixing well and sprinkle with granulated sugar before baking. If a cupful of ham or cooked chicken is left, put it through the meat grinder and add to a dish of well seasoned macaroni.

Emergency Lunches

The housewife who keeps a few cans of soup, string beans, peas and spinach on her emergency shelf may have a very wholesome luncheon in a short time. A good combination from a dietetic standpoint is tomato or celery as first course, then some spinach, sliced sweet potatoes baked in sugar, a well-baked apple with bread and butter and you have a good substantial luncheon.

Lamb in Ramekins.—Mix one-half cupful of condensed milk with one-fourth cupful of water, add two cupfuls of minced lamb, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonfuls of green pepper chopped and one tablespoonful of chopped onion. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs sprinkled over the ramekins after they are filled with the meat mixture. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes or until well browned.

Sweet Croquettes.—Mix together one cupful of cake crumbs, one-fourth cupful of blanched almonds or grated coconut, the grated rind of half an lemon, and one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice; add one-half cupful of orange juice and let stand for ten minutes. Heat to the boiling point, remove, add one egg yolk lightly beaten and cool. Shape as croquettes, dip into egg white diluted with one tablespoonful of water and roll in dry bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat and serve sprinkled with powdered sugar and chocolate sauce.

Apple Souffle.—Take one pint of steamed apples, one tablespoonful of melted butter, one-half cupful of sugar, the whites of six eggs, the yolks of three, a slight grating of nutmeg. Stir the butter, sugar and egg yolks beaten well into the hot apples. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and fold into the mixture. Butter a baking dish and turn in the souffle. Bake thirty minutes in a hot oven. Serve at once with any desired sauce.

Let's Have a Cookie

There is no small cake which is more popular than a well-made cookie. However well they may be mixed, if they are not neatly rolled out and carefully baked so that they keep their shape well, their real charm is spoiled. For those who do not wish to take the trouble to roll and cut the cookies they may be dropped or rolled into balls, then when baked they will
